Presenting MANDAKINI - MALABARI VAATTÉ The True Spirit of Malabar

Mandakini is a handcrafted unaged spirit with spice influences from Malabar. Malabar region was the once spice capital of the world and the birthplace of Black Pepper

Mandakini Origins

Unaged sugarcane-based spirits are very popular in the working class of the Indian subcontinent. In some regions, it's legal and mass-produced and in other regions, it's illegal and distilled with makeshift distills. The illegal distills have undefined alcohol content hence notoriously famous for their potency.

Mandakini is an attempt to bring the Indian flavors of unaged sugarcane-based spirits to a global platform.

Malabari - Means a native or inhabitant of the Malabar Region.

The name Malabari was inspired from the book "Hortus Malabaricus" meaning - The Garden of Malabar by Dutch East India Company Governor of Malabar Hendrik Van Rheede along with renowned Herbalist Itty Achutan Vaidyar in AD1678 which gives a detailed flora of the Malabar region.

Vaatte - Vaatte is the traditional Malayalam word for the unaged distilled spirit.

Malabari Vaatte is inspired by the traditional Vaatte with rich ingredients from the tropical forests of the Malabar region. The once spice capital of the world, Malabar is the land of monsoons and is located in the western part of peninsular India between the western ghat mountains and the Arabian sea.
